Miscellaneous Subjects.

To say that salaria is multiplex since is to put it very mildly. It is all that and more. It is cunning, deceitful, treacherous, sly, and undefinable. It does its work in the dark, and in such a sly way that much of the mischief is done before it is discovered. It saps the foundations of a healthy system. It robs the blood of its vitality, demoralizes the liver, confounds the stomach, and makes the victim wish he were in his grave. It is and is not people at first, in their misery, content to be the victims of malignant salaria, and finding that nothing can be done for them. The genius of Brown's Iron Bitters over the machinations of salaria has been so amply proved that there is no reason why anybody who can procure a bottle of the Prince of Tonics shall suffer. Great is the power of salaria, and great are its disastrous effects. But greater by a hundredfold is the power of Brown's Iron Bitters. The proposition of iron in this favorite family remedy can be taken without causing the teeth or producing constipation and headache.

THE Admiration OF THE WORLD.
Mrs. S. A. Allen's WORLD'S Hair Restorer
IS PERFECTION!

Public Institutions, Dec. 6.

Mrs. S. A. Allen—Dear Madam: I have used the contents of one bottle of your Hair Restorer, and find it the most perfect preparation for restoring the hair to its natural color that I have ever seen. The Worlds Fair Judges gave it the highest award. Yours truly, [illegible], Superintendent.

SUPPLEMENTARY. "My hair is now restored to its youthful color; I have not a gray hair left. I am satisfied that the preparation is not a dye, but acts on the secretions. My hair comes to fall, which is certainly an advantage to me, who was in danger of becoming bald." This is the testimony of all who use Mrs. S. A. ALLEN'S WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.

"One Bottle did it." This is the way many express themselves after using Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer. Gray hair restored to its natural color, and the scalp made free from dandruff and itching. Sold by druggists. Depot, 112 Madison-st.

POSTAL AFFAIRS.

OFFICE OF RECEIPTS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF THE STATE OF INDIANA.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 3.—[Special.]—Since after the reduction in postage went into effect Mr. Hamm, Third Assistant Postmaster-General, prepared and forwarded circulars to the principal postoffices in order that the Postmasters might at the close of the first month send in statements of the receipts of the postoffices. These statements are beginning to come in, but as no one is posted from the returns received to date it is believed that postal receipts for the month of October will show a material increase over the previous month, if not over the increased receipts which will be greater, but the reduction will not be so great as would at first be supposed. During September there were issued which are many persons of the matter-of-fact largely of the new envelopes "special-request" envelopes to be delivered Oct. 1, and these envelopes were sent to those ordered, so that the receipts from the sale of a large quantity of postage stamps, none of which were delivered before that time, were included in the September returns, and so have swelled those receipts, while the October receipts will consequently fall off. Where do you buy your Velvets?
Where do you buy your Plushes?
Where do you buy your Dress Goods?

Facts. Facts. Facts.

"It is a conceded fact by every lady and merchant visiting our store that we have the largest stock of Standard Silks, Velvets, Plushes, and Dress Goods in the City of Chicago, and for less money than all first-class competitors. We do not attempt to destroy the public by advertising inferior and cotton goods at prices that the cheapest child in the West will know to be unreliable. We have established a reputation for selling Number One goods every day; two days; and propose to sustain it at any cost. We have become the wonder of the 19th century, as we are the only house in the United States where the "Courts" were called upon to prevent the selling of Dry Goods TOO CHEAP.

are conspicuous for that durability that next to tone quality is the paramount consideration in the selection of an instrument. MANY PIANOS that when new possess a pleasing quality of tone that defies all but the most expert investigation prove themselves utterly worthless and unreliable when subject to the crucial test of persistent and continued use, the tone speedily losing its freshness and assuming that wiry and unmusical quality so devoid of melodiousness and so offensive to the cultivated ear.

Indorsed by the most celebrated authorities of the musical world and by the liberal and increasing patronage of the most cultured public, these instruments offer the most absolute security to the purchaser.

A PRESCRIPTION FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Certain luxurious, rational, and, most agreeable of all, as drugs necessary. By complying with the following suggestions all the symptoms of Dyspepsia, such as distress at stomach, nervousness, insomnia, impatience, sick headache, heartburn, etc., etc., will disappear, the sufferer will again be cheerful, able to fulfill his duties and to enjoy life. Thousands have been positive already, and many thousands more can be made happy also. Now for the prescription:

Breakfast—A slice or two of bread or oatmeal or cracked wheat, a cup of coffee or tea (if desired), and a glass of Arend's Kumyss.

Dinner—A moderate piece of lean beef or mutton, a mealy potato or two, a little bread, and a glass of Arend's Kumyss.

Supper—To suit food whatever, simply one or two glasses of Arend's Kumyss. A glass of Kumyss may also be taken as refreshing. Most people sleep better on it.

Though this regimen of diet may seem exact to such as are in the habit of satisfying their appetites not distinguishing between appetite and hunger), yet scientific investigation and experience have proved that it is sufficient for all but hard laborers. With above diet the dyspeptic grows fleshy, ruddy, hearty, where on a richer diet he stays poor, weak, and sickly. One week's trial will tell the story and prove the logic of above suggestions. If you do not know what Arend's Kumyss is you can have a treatise thereon mailed to you, gratis, by addressing Lord Salisbury's Article in the "Saturday Review" Discussed.

The Landlord Party Has Nothing to Fear from Home-Rule Discussion.

How a Real Piece of Legal Robbery Was Effected in the Reign of George III.

The Old Game of Presenting a False Issue Being Played Over Again.

DUBLIN, Ire., Oct. 31.—[Special Correspondence.] Little by ruffled feathers in the party Pantom, enter Lord Salisbury in the pages of the Quarterly Review, and you have instant all the accident of political debauchery and modern in the fruitcake movement under the objects of Tory attack. The change in the mode of contemplation in the case with which this work is considerable. Sir Stafford Northcote with his meaningless platitudes was a small for indoor consumption on the electing, supplementary action of the home Conservative members. There is method as well as motive in Lord Salisbury's hunting of the question which is rife in the Tory leadership heralded in Saturday, with bright and keen as are the enclosure in which "the sentiment of England" is to be coaxed to assist the last desperate and final policy of disintegration, there is evidence of resolution in the one which to stand and abundance of unwilling sentiment in the elements of the last Salisbury position. "If good writing but bad politics," is the judgment which the Pall Mall Gazette has passed upon the nine-day brilliant performance of Lord Beaconsfield's successor.

The conflict must be real to a condition able under between the two in order to be fully comprehended. In relation at the outset of the great electoral struggle which will shortly concern England to a party therefore both. The Quarterly Review article on "Disintegration" is a chapterism to its walls of which rare political experiments on Lord Beaconsfield's letter on "Imperialism" to the Duke of Marlborough on the eve of the last general election. The object with the great Tory chieftain sought to accomplish was that which can be seen looking beneath the political parade of the living master's agents to attitude Conservatives. Two issues comprising latent were before the public at the time of the last dissolution of Parliament—one exclusively affecting this country; and the other touching the more imperative question of that time, touching social interest and appealing to class passions in England as well as to Ireland. However was the question or sentimental issue; the land question, the rent, and, in the Tory landlord party, the one which threatened their interests and political standing with most danger. The Land Leaguers realized the dominating political influence of the time objective; and, with all defiant war mongering with the cries of "Down with landlordism!" "The land for the people!" and the most advanced theories on social reform were being repudiated in English papers from Irish platforms, the Irish letter to the Conservatives of England appeared from the Tory Pitt-Stirling, to which the "Imperialism" was meant to be kept in view to diverting the current of popular impulse and energy from the land to the national question. The case did not account. The intense passion was not the spirit of at the instant, but the process was not to be turned back from its set purpose of grappling with landlordism who felt themselves of the question which the rival to the Tory leadership, instead of fighting the enemy in front, turned to fight in the rear. Lord Salisbury's article is the first step to be taken in the new direction. It is the first step to be taken in the new direction. It is the first step to be taken in the new direction.

THE CATHOLIC QUESTION.

Although the natural instinct the social or take sometimes, the writer prefer to see the greater rather than the lesser issues to kept pending, during the whole of Parnell's super agitation the more does not to accept as preferable to temporal power. Home Rule or constitutional Home Legislative independence was a question between Parliament and the Imperial Parliament, to which the population of one country would not to have said to be a such for, or that of England would to consider upon one question, such reasons. The arrangements of things connect the rule of a Parliament in College Green, Dublin, with that of Queen Victoria at Windsor as much as that of Parliament at Westminster. In one respect, however, in one would not suggest to interest or doting to England a quite complete and than a share of justice, that history has yet to write the part which such a settlement has played in the solution of any Irish national problem. From the settlement of the Irish question, therefore, the Tory landlord party have nothing to fear; it cannot find in the question of Irish Home Rule, and to a consideration as to which it should be settled, the interest of landlordism would be better served by the one course than the other. Under the Irish Parliament there would be no more danger than at present of the Irish question being used as a means of attack upon the landlords. The Irish Parliament would be a concession to England, to Ireland, to Scotland, to Wales, to the Empire, to the civilized world. Ireland would be represented in the Imperial Parliament, and the Irish Parliament would be a concession to England, to Ireland, to Scotland, to Wales, to the Empire, to the civilized world. Ireland would be represented in the Imperial Parliament, and the Irish Parliament would be a concession to England, to Ireland, to Scotland, to Wales, to the Empire, to the civilized world.

THE LAND QUESTION.

Although the Irish landlords would be willing to see the Irish Parliament established, they would not be willing to see the Irish Parliament established, they would not be willing to see the Irish Parliament established, they would not be willing to see the Irish Parliament established.

THE LAND LEAGUE.

The Land League is the organization which has been the subject of so much discussion, and which has been the subject of so much discussion, and which has been the subject of so much discussion, and which has been the subject of so much discussion.

THE LAND LEAGUE AND THE LANDLORDS.

The Land League and the landlords have been in conflict for many years, and the conflict has been the subject of much discussion, and the conflict has been the subject of much discussion, and the conflict has been the subject of

ABOUT "FREAKS."

The "Palatine Giant" Tells a Reporter How He Got That Bullet Into Him.

The Bearded Woman, the Aviaries and Ladies Rest, and Other Curiosities.

The Interest for Those Seeking Construction Jobs Always to Negotiate the Supply.

"I'm the fellow given out a great deal of trouble to any number, such as this," said Col. Routt Gaston, the "Palatine Giant," who is daily engaged in showing the genuine smiles to stop upon ordinary mortals. It was just before the noon mess opened a day or two ago, and a Tribune reporter was sitting in the manager's compartment chatting with Messrs. Ruth and Hamilton and their press agent. The "curiosities, monstrosities, and freaks of nature" were somewhat about and getting themselves in trim to endure the public gaze, and the various halls and corridors were comparatively deserted. The best of those were going about carelessly in their ordinary surroundings, and the little child was having a romp with her doll, with the secret hid from both showing how to do it. The bearded lady was effectively avoiding her luncheon hour, and the proprietors were getting up steam for the day. Col. Gaston had just come up from the dining-room attached to the extensive establishment and was good-humoredly attired in the attractive sight-seers and he dropped in on the Tribune man to the completeness and true gentleman to confirm the history of the alleged stay at said hotel which was said to repose beneath the south-west quarter of the vast hall of let it to the astonishing exhibition.

The Colonel is a brilliant storyteller and he was the subject to such vivid and realistic pictures that one is almost led to believe that he is narrating facts.

"I received the wound in Canadian waters," said the Colonel, in answering to the query of the writer in the corner. "I received not all on just below the city, and I had myself carried ashore to right there under the trees. Gathering the contents of the vest.

"I carried a pistol ever since and all about it for such. Colonel, didn't it," quoted Mr. Ruth.

"Oh, it never very readily at times," replied the Colonel, "particularly of a morning. I am quite I was a prisoner in the English army, and was stationed in the garrison at Mr. Armstrong, who painted the [illegible] portrait of the Colonel's celebrated carriage. But after I left India I went to America, and across the Rockies [illegible] I was taken prisoner to the Indians. I was subsequently released to some [illegible] and finally got safely to the States. Then I was made a prisoner to a Rebel army and threatened to be shot as a spy, but succeeded in escaping, and

Review of the Week.

Mr. Lytton Sothern has not yet quite brought him to judge into the character of Lord Dundreary, and his other assumptions are merely, by contrast, to call strongly to mind the original. Sothern touches extravagance, but apparently is not strong, and it is just as difficult to create another Dundreary by dressing his manner as it would be to "produce another Cromwell by stuffing his uniform." Mr. Sothern, though he made the side-whiskers and the attention of the excitable widowers, though he imitates inimitable tricks, the manner, and the gaps of the Dundreary of other days, and across the evergreen which covers of perfect conditions, and does not fail to the tone that easy and modest gesture which the elder Sothern knew so well how to communicate to his audience. The accepted actor has not learned to stand his humor and refers to manage which lends the other humors to relieve the monotony of the scene, and to serve as the foil with the laughing grace. But as the Dundreary of Lytton Sothern is a study, and the brightest stock-piece of the day is a satire of the sort. Sothern is a pretty good actor even when not at his best, and Mrs. Sothern's friends may hope that in time they will appreciate better the genuine humor of the part than he will seem to have done yesterday, and will cease to be content to have imported to the occasions to see in the golden days. Lytton Sothern is a comedian

THE TONQUIN TROUBLE.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—[Special Cable Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.]—The Triton Herald, in an interview with The Times correspondent today at Palmerston, says he believes that the chances of war between China and France were rapidly increasing. "It is true," said the Marquis Tseng, "that I have refused to return to Paris. My action as the Commander of China to France has been officially misrepresented by the French Cabinet to the French Chambers for the purpose of obtaining a vote of confidence in the Ministry on a false statement of the Ministry's public conduct towards China. The Ministry, however, knowing that the Prime Minister of France, next to the Chinese Government, M. Ferry, the Foreign Minister of France, was to be the first to receive me on my arrival, sent a telegram from M. Thiers, the French agent in China, to the French government to inform the French Legislature that I did not correspond with the views of my Government upon the Tonquin dispute, and asserted that Li Hung Chang, the Chinese Viceroy and the Governor of the Southern Chinese Provinces, and Li Yu-ching, Governor-in-Chief of the Province of Yunnan, were entirely opposed to the views of the Chinese Government. I was quite natural for the French Legislature to take M. Ferry's declaration for the correctness of the statement and for the authority of its statements. I am not surprised that the French Prime Minister by his communication to the Assembly that my instructions to the French representative in Tonquin were not indorsed by the Chinese Government, and secured a vote of approval for those instructions. The vote has been secured, but the matter is not done. The vote was accomplished through menace of a false previous. I declare that the Triton telegram, written by the protector of M. Thiers or not, was a lie. It was a sure lie; a lie to, consequently, for the purpose of securing a false effect. The servants of China must receive instructions. When our official utterances of the Chinese Government, I will cease to hold the post of commissioner between China and France, and will be very careful of the fact I accept a Chinese course, and not disregard a Chinese utterance from French sources. The Marquis was a lie. M. Ferry was a lie. M. Ferry's assertion that I was not to be received with honor by the Chinese Government, will be a political assertion, which may have been considered by Marquis Tseng, but was never made by French politicians, but was never known. The visit may have been considered by the Chinese Government, but it will be received by the said to be welcome. In fact, I will return China, which has been patient with France. If the French war party prevails, because of the vote secured by this false pretense and lie, to attempt another war towards Bastion, China will declare war."

"Is it true," asked the correspondent, "that England encouraged China to oppose the French aggression in Tonquin at a time when China had concluded to allow them to proceed unopposed?"

"It is untrue," answered the Marquis Tseng. "Chamberlain Lawson, of the then French Minister for Foreign Affairs, made a statement to that effect. The fact of the matter is officially called this to explain the statement. Up to this date he has not done so. It is not true that England, or any other Power, has influenced China to any degree during the present dispute with France. China alone is mainly able to care for all Chinese interests, and China intends to fully do it."

"What will be the outcome?" asked the correspondent.

"Whatever the outcome may be," said the Marquis, "you must not look to the present Chinese Government for any accurate prophecy concerning it. M. Chamberlain's career during the time he acted as Foreign Minister, and subsequently, seems to be in a position to decide, particularly success his countrymen that there was no danger of complications with China. Every one of the French Ministers who pronounce the utterances have labored, and declare the relations between China and France to be of the most friendly nature, but the attitude of the French Ministers does not correspond with their words, but the utterances of the Chinese Government."

The Marquis Tseng during the entire interview was cool and self-reliant and spoke without any hesitation.

[Mr. Chamberlain, to be remembered, will go to Canada, ostensibly for his health.

M. Jules Ferry, acting as French Minister for Foreign Affairs, today announced his intention to ask the Chambers next week to vote an additional credit of $50,000,000 for the Tonquin expedition. This is accepted as the result of a determination to secure reparations at once on the Red River. The Chinese Legation at Paris, when the announcement of the Ministry was given to the Ministry, threatened to demand their passports if the Ministry referred to the vote with a request for an additional Tonquin war credit. The announcement of the result today by M. Ferry was at first by two, Brazil, recently recognized the revolutionary form, has been in a state, and was called to Paris to explain some of the actions [illegible] to return to Tonquin. He has [illegible] to vote by voting in the views M. Ferry, with whom the soldier's advice, has determined to ask for a special addition to purchase [illegible] of $5,000 French soldiers into operation in Tonquin. Gen. Brun expects to be placed at the head of this force.

It is understood that the Chinese Legation at Paris have been instructed from Pekin to demand their passports and leave Paris at once if the credit is voted and vetoed. The passing of the credit will be accepted at Pekin as a declaration of war, and the Chinese forces on the Tonquin border and at Hainan will be ordered forward at once.

THE ENGLISH WHEAT.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—[Special Cable Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.]—All was quiet today on the Liverpool Cotton Exchange. A survey of the wreck caused by the disastrous [illegible] of North Hanger Wednesday last was shown that fifteen firms were involved and several more as yesterday complete. It is now believed, however, that the list of evil results is not concluded, and the next day [illegible] Saturday, the 10th, [illegible] evident with cautious forethought, and the conviction that it will bring the commencement of several more failures. The most conservative and astute of the operators on Change are, however, somewhat threatened with the belief that the present crisis will ultimately result to the advantage of the legitimate traders, and operators of this class do not although at present their existing over the ruin of the Citizens of cotton. The meeting of Ranger's creditors was today announced to take place the 21st inst. It is probable that it will be a [illegible] one, as the feeling against Ranger is very bitter on the part of most of the creditors, [illegible] today. The [illegible] attitude that is still maintained by that man Ranger in the course of affairs. His early [illegible] to be prominent, as one of the youngest along the flags of Lord street, under his broad-rimmed hat and rolling the smoke of his costly cigars into the faces of those whom he has robbed.

It is a notable [illegible], to suppose that Morris Ranger is clearly a religious [illegible] or that in his life and habits he is, or has been eccentric still, a countryman of James Pirk K., when that individual was drawn on the Fleece of Jew. Mr. Ranger lived quietly, and his habits were regularly simple and regular. He walked to the exchange every morning, [illegible] punctually at the same table in the Angel Hotel for many years, and at the end of the day's business, was driven home quietly to a [illegible] cab. He gave to charities freely, and was generally respected, in fact, one leading sense of the cotton on the exchange, no one can be found to speak harshly of him in any of the relations of life.

A RACE FOR THE SPECULATOR.

In order to get Mr. Ranger's own explanation of the failure one of the business editors of The Chicago correspondent at Liverpool had [illegible] with the great speculator, which was opened with frank and [illegible] on the part of Ranger, who seemed to invite [illegible] concerning his affairs. "Gentlemen," Mr. Ranger briefly replied, "I have to inform you that the trouble [illegible] with the influx of war, and I might have expected to receive a fourth-class [illegible] to a [illegible]. I have been an operator on the Liverpool Exchange for [illegible] years, and I can [illegible] my fair dealing at those years I have never used unworthy means to induce any one to operation. My connection have always been open to the daylight, and everyone could see my methods of business."

"What, then, caused the unexpected crash and the immense loss?"

"Simply that the brokers ruined the business for fair and not for in the face of plain facts which should have been [illegible] them. Those who have been [illegible] about perfectly the rules they were [illegible], and if the ills that befell the other men would have [illegible] them, [illegible] without remark. However, I have had the satisfaction of receiving statements of sympathy from many quarters, and one [illegible] from those with whom I [illegible] transactions have often amounted to £50,000 a year."

"What were the facts which you say should have given warning of the trouble?"

"The greatest one was the partial failure of the American cotton crop. The accounts which have been coming on the best side of course [illegible] to cause a rise in prices, and those who had been operating on the bear side of course suffered by the upsetting of their calculations. Then the bulls pushed their advantages, and the dark operators had to go to the wall."

"What about the extensive speculations you are said to have had in futures?"

"That is of a subject, of a [illegible] nature. I have done absolutely nothing in the New York or New Orleans markets during the last eighteen months, and I owe nothing to those cities, despite the assertions to the contrary which have been so freely made by some of the newspapers, notably the London Times. My connections have always conducted to Liverpool since the spring of 1882."

Some of the newspapers, including the Times, having urged the adoption of the American system of lodging cotton to sell, the correspondent or a member of prevailing London speculation, the St. James Gazette, [illegible] made with a strong leader saying the system, which would be serious to receive something out of the stock, no matter who suffered.

THE SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—[Special Cable Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.]—Three Socialists were injured by injuries caused by the explosion on the underground railway Tuesday night. Two of them, George Lemple and Herman Lorrison, are prominent in the organization. The former, who represented England at the Socialistic conference in Brussels, is now suffering from one of his arms severely burnt. The latter's injuries are not so serious. The Socialists deny all complicity in the affair, and ascribe the accident to the action which [illegible] and [illegible] at [illegible] and [illegible] of the latter. What are the facts of the case are simply conjecture. The police have many theories which will prove a failure, but they are sanguine that they will succeed in [illegible] the affair. The police have been [illegible] rather than a help to their schemes. The efforts of the police to discover any trace of the miscreants have been without result, and they are beginning to lose heart. Many of the officials thinking that the search is [illegible]. They say that the property affected [illegible] too small to cause any detention, and that without the aid of an informer the matter will be almost impossible.

The traffic on the underground railway is becoming [illegible]. The streets which have been in the habit of using the line have become [illegible], and all those who can possibly reach their destination by other means are doing so. A feeling of general uneasiness has taken possession of the traveling public, and the profits accrue all the [illegible] railroads have been greatly increased.

There is great activity manifested among the Socialists in England. This is to some extent in response to the action of the police in [illegible] the lectures of the orator on [illegible] subject on the Continent. A meeting was held in London Tuesday, which was [illegible] by the most perfect [illegible] of the body worldwide. There was [illegible] good order in the [illegible] meeting [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WARRING POLES.

A BITTER FEUD PROMISED CONFUSION.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 3.—[Special.] Just now the attention of the whole city is attracted to a serious outing on in the ranks of the Polish politicians on the South Side. The hostile lines form to settle charges against the character and proceedings of A.G. Smklinski, a young Pole, who secured on the last election to stunning a seat in the City Council. He is charged to have exerted himself to the utmost to defeat the candidacy of Mr. Smklinski, and by so doing to have incurred the hatred of the entire Polish element of the South Side. He is charged to have exerted himself to the utmost to defeat the candidacy of Mr. Smklinski, and by so doing to have incurred the hatred of the entire Polish element of the South Side.

The quarrel dates back many years, and is the result of a bitter feud between two factions of the Polish people. The trouble has been brewing for some time, and it is generally believed that there will be a fight before the matter is settled. The leaders of the two factions are well known in political circles, and the fight promises to be a lively one.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

A BRILLIANT CAREER—THE VETERAN EDITOR'S RECOLLECTIONS—SOCIAL NOTES.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 3.—[Special.] The announcement is privately made that the Hon. William E. Cramer, the veteran politician and editor, will soon start with his wife on another trip to Europe. The announcement furnishes occasion to call attention to the extraordinary career of one of the most remarkable men, in some respects, in this State. For a generation Mr. Cramer has been one of the leading and most remarkable editors and politicians in Wisconsin. He has built up the Evening Wisconsin establishment into one of the best-paying properties of business in Milwaukee, has amassed a handsome fortune, and is still a hard worker in the editorial harness, one of the most active factors in the business of the community. But the most remarkable part of all this is, that he performed all his labor in spite of the fact that for many years he has been almost entirely blind and deaf. He is to be about the city in an attendant, and can hardly be told by the outsider or visitor or utility customer. He directs his editorial writers to support or oppose, and the daily papers are read to him by members of his family or by employes of the establishment. He directs his correspondence to be answered, and the daily mail is opened and read to him. He has been a member of the Legislature, and has been prominently mentioned for Governor and United States Senator, but has never sought office. He has been a leader in the Democratic party, but has always been with the Stalwarts of that party, and has refused to accept the nomination of Democratic Governors on the ground that he could not support the platform. He has been a delegate to National Democratic conventions, but has always refused to be a candidate for Presidential elector. He has been a member of the Democratic State Committee, but has never attended a meeting of that body. He has been a member of the Democratic National Committee, but has never attended a meeting of that body. He has been a member of the Democratic National Committee, but has never attended a meeting of that body. He has been a member of the Democratic National Committee, but has never attended a meeting of that body.

Mr. Cramer was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1817, and is consequently in his seventy-eighth year. He was educated in the public schools of Pittsburgh, and learned the printer's trade in the office of the Pittsburgh Gazette. He was subsequently employed as a printer in Cincinnati, Chicago, and Detroit, and in 1841 he came to Milwaukee, where he has since resided. He was for a time employed on the Milwaukee Sentinel, and in 1844 he established the Milwaukee Courier, which he published for several years. He was also for a time connected with the Milwaukee Daily News, and in 1852 he established the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, which he has published ever since. He was elected Mayor of Milwaukee in 1852, and served one term. He was a member of the Legislature in 1853, and was elected to the State Senate in 1855, and served one term. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1856 to 1860, and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1860. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1864 to 1868, and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1868. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1872 to 1876, and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1876. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1880 to 1884, and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1884. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1888 to 1892, and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1892.

Mr. Cramer was married in 1841 to Miss Mary Ann Wetherill, daughter of the Hon. Winfield Smith, of this city. He has been a member of the Episcopal Church for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Masonic fraternity for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Odd Fellows for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Knights of Pythias for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Grand Army of the Republic for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Loyal Legion for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Sons of the American Revolution for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Colonial Dames of America for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Colonial Dames of the State of Wisconsin for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. He has been a member of the Colonial Dames of the City of Milwaukee for many years, and has been a liberal contributor to its support. NOTES IN BRIEF.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 3.—[Special.] It is a noteworthy fact in connection with the protest for a antlers movement to this city that the active steps in the matter proceed from the veteran Democrats. The citizens who took no part in the War have remained idle in the matter, and the steps have not been taken by the field of the wars. As a prominent ex-soldier said to THE TRIBUNE correspondent today: "It appears that the citizens except the soldiers are ready to do the fighting, but to put up a monument to the memory of the killed." But the men who did the fighting are thoroughly in earnest now, and the matter will not rest till a suitable monument to the memory of the dead heroes of Milwaukee County shall be erected. The work of securing subscriptions to defray expenses, and the amount likely to be raised will insure a monument worthy of the occasion, just as general favor as a strong sentiment in favor of a departure from the usual custom in such matters of erecting a memorial tablet instead of a triumphal arch or a shaft of marble or granite. Dr. C. W. Hamer, a leading professional politician, does not like the policy of those who favor this plan. "I am doing for a good Republican for the proposed monument. But will actually give my time the moment subscriptions for the proposed monument are opened at the headquarters of the Republican party. I would rather see the money raised by a popular subscription, so that every citizen may have a share in the matter. But I will not allow my personal preferences to interfere with the success of the movement. I am willing to do my share, and I know a good many Republicans who will do the same." Dr. Hamer's position is generally indorsed by the Republicans, and it is probable that the Republican party will be the first to open subscription lists.

Fulbright's explanation of the affair is published today. Outside of all connection with the row and Senator Vilas's name figured among the Pullman counsel, Fulbright says, he never appeared as counsel for the Pullman Company, and he does not deny the charges of bribery, but prefers to rest on his record and on the assurance that he was greatly hurt by the story after election, and wrote to that newspaper protesting against forgery, which proved, when acted, to be hurtful to Vilas.

THE BASEMENTS.

They Are Bad, Unhealthy, Inconvenient, and Generally Disliked.

In the Vaults of Wicker Park of Chicago a Well-Equipped Basement Is Here.

Successful Trial at Baltimore Almost Invariably Suggestive of Disease.

Many Walls, Many Clothing, Many Beds, Many Carpets, Many Rooms, and Many Executors.

A thrilling chapter ought to be written about life in the basement of Chicago, and one which would contain all the elements of attractiveness to the composition of novels, the depth of its horrors, the poverty of its poor, and the misery of its miserable. The reader might be led to thought through the excellent, heavy and roaring basements to the worse grottoes of the miserables of the lowly folk, stairs also, stones, and what feel the sight to excite or abandonment. Above lay the gaily-decorated drawing-rooms, the mahogany and velvet-lined chairs of the better class, the exclusive, the great underground darkness, and the sunken rooms. Such a short sight between of rooms, for all are in contrast and with the entertainment life. But the reporter will not venture on such a chapter, concerning and instructive as tonight be, but will go now the safer line, a silhouette and not from a romantic supposition—the use of basements as dwelling spaces.

THREE KINDS OF BASEMENTS.

Basements as used may be divided into three classes: those in the low rows of the most buildings, as that in the best portions of the city; those in the most crowded and those down town. The consideration of these divisions will be a necessity for the future to choose intelligently in the matter of the structure of a new home or for the purchase or sale of a building. Basements are found with a variety of conditions, as a business, a residence, a boarding-house, a saloon, a restaurant, a laundry, a store, a factory, a workshop, a warehouse, a stable, a coach-house, a coal-cellar, a wine-cellar, a beer-cellar, a lumber-yard, a coal-yard, a wood-yard, a hay-yard, a grain-yard, a flour-yard, a meal-yard, a feed-yard, a seed-yard, a bulb-yard, a plant-yard, a tree-yard, a shrub-yard, a vine-yard, a flower-yard, a garden-yard, a park-yard, a cemetery-yard, a church-yard, a school-yard, a college-yard, a university-yard, a library-yard, a museum-yard, a gallery-yard, a theater-yard, a concert-yard, a hall-yard, a club-yard, a lodge-yard, a society-yard, a union-yard, a guild-yard, a trade-yard, a craft-yard, a profession-yard, a business-yard, a commerce-yard, a manufacture-yard, a mine-yard, a quarry-yard, a forest-yard, a field-yard, a farm-yard, a ranch-yard, a plantation-yard, a garden-yard, a park-yard, a cemetery-yard, a church-yard, a school-yard, a college-yard, a university-yard, a library-yard, a museum-yard, a gallery-yard, a theater-yard, a concert-yard, a hall-yard, a club-yard, a lodge-yard, a society-yard, a union-yard, a guild-yard, a trade-yard, a craft-yard, a profession-yard, a business-yard, a commerce-yard, a manufacture-yard, a mine-yard, a quarry-yard, a forest-yard, a field-yard, a farm-yard, a ranch-yard, a plantation-yard.

AUSTRALIA.

A Country Concerning Which Americans Are Wofully Ignorant.

Its Wool Output Is the Most Profitable Elsewhere and Flocking Steady Gain.

The Dismal Land Industry Rapidly Developing into Giant Proportions.

An Emigration of Prominent Australians to America Proposed—Other Matters.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., AUSTRALIA, Oct. 5.—[Special Correspondence.]—To the average American the great island continent of Australia is an unknown land. Before saying I knew but a very little I scanned the bookshelves for literature that would in some degree enlighten me as to "the living present" of these colonies; but the search ended in vain. I found histories and one of the leaving of Capt. Cook at Botany Bay, and references were made to the land that attracted more attention to my search for any book concerning to-day. Visitors to the Centennial Exhibition will recall the immense dried black which was intended to represent the gold product of Australia, and the big ram of bronze cutting hair to weight and value, as well as the specimen of the preserving stamps crafted in deep-colored. But very few there, though more modern than the wheat lobster, brought into exchange to instruct concerning the enterprising people found here and the extraordinary land, embracing area nearly one-third as large as the entire territorial limits of the United States exclusive of Alaska.

With a climate favoring the growth of cereals and vegetables in variety and promising during the production of any other country, genial warmth brought in by English-speaking men of enterprise and wealth, there is this cause for wonder that Australia has left as a Government and not the foundations of a prevailing future interest attracting the notice of most Americans to any considerable extent.

I had long felt a desire to see this country. For many years identified with the industry of wool-growing in the United States, I had noticed with interest the exciting product from Australian fields as it flowed in to our consuming centers into the markets of Europe, and furnished for business hours what was required before the supply from the domestic clip. With the war with considerable determined my visit here, the study of these industries to us seemed desirable and questions of the rising and growing country.

Seventy-five hundred miles of sea voyage, even though made in the calm of the ocean, may be and succeeded in render the spirit of adventure to the traveler; but the many ever-varying Pan-Indoor Ocean harbor, made so much attending to favorable to its attractions. Islands, and reefs, and penetrative winds were the cause to much longer interruption as to make the consumption of natural beauty, even fertile and rich, and, finally, the well-built and bustling City of Sydney, was the point of long to be reached in comfort from the coast.

THE WOOL INTEREST.

Australian and prosperity for growing conventional heritage dates with general good from transit which, in the general prosperity of the country is to be attributed. The wool interest has been the foundation of the country's prosperity. Starting the wool industry in 1788 with a few sheep brought from the Cape of Good Hope, the flocks increased rapidly, and in 1821 the first wool was exported. In 1850 the exports had reached 1,000,000 pounds, and in 1870 they had reached 10,000,000 pounds. In 1880 they had reached 20,000,000 pounds. In 1890 they had reached 30,000,000 pounds. GEN. BOULANGER.

His Intimacy with the Commander-in-Chief—Plans for the Tonquin Campaign.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—[Special Cable Dispatch to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]—Much interest is felt at the arrival from Tonquin of Gen. Boulanger, who is one of the strongest Generals in the French army, being only 45 years of age. An explosion in the Chinese fort he is to take a mission to the Asian Government, and hopes to be allowed to command the contingent to Tonquin. He states that Lt.-Gen. Millot has expressed to the Paris Cabinet the true condition of affairs in the far East, the serious nature of which is not generally understood. Nevertheless he regrets still have a great influence on the question of peace or war. Were the French sent to dispersed there were barely 5,000 French troops in Tonquin, but there are 6,000. But 6,000 are needed. This estimate did not make any conclusion to view of Chinese reinforcements, in such case it would be necessary to still further reinforce the French force.

[Gen. Boulanger, the French said: "I am most confident that this is my position at present. All we may do is to maintain a protectorate. As I am a soldier, not a statesman, it is not my province to discuss the matter, but I suppose the step course would be to do what has already been done in Cambodia, the King of which country is not robbed because he pays tribute to us. At the same time my actual idea from Tonquin is that we keep an Indo-China. That is the real end in view. I had a superficial view of the country, but do not believe the task will come to make a track and vigorous attempt. It will be difficult to get out of the scrape with small a force. We shall have to make the most sacrifices to form a protectorate, but must do it if we want to retain a colony. This expedition is necessary for the future safety of European interests, and the Chinese racing must be kept within its borders. For the present we must prevent the entrance of Chinese and Chinese from entering Tonquin. A show of force is all that is required. For myself, I am a Frenchman and a soldier. I have only to serve."

The General added that it was about impossible to form an approximate estimate of the number of Black Flags. It was believed that the Bourbon garrison contained somewhat of 2,000 men, and Hanoi is defended by 6,000. According to quite the best accounts that 30,000. This was, however, a mere conjecture. Since the Red Surrender was executed the ranks of the Black Flags have been constantly increased by desperate characters and by whole troops of Tonquinese, whose only occupation is pillage. Such a contingent will serve at Hanoi, but will be worsened on the eve of the fighting by 5,000 natives in characteristic costumes, with a torchlight procession.

THE FAST-DAY FETE.

Preparations for Luther Celebration at the City of Worms.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—[Special Cable Dispatch to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]—Vastly-Fist-ness. The Standard has a letter from its Berlin correspondent which contains much of interest concerning the approaching festivities at Worms, in honor of Martin Luther, which, it will be remembered, are to take place next week. The writer says: "Preparations for the Luther festivities are being made on a scale of unprecedented magnificence. Along the principal streets through which the great procession will pass the houses will be decorated with flags, escutcheons, garlands, and evergreens. Throughout the route festive lines of variegated material will be stretched from the entrance to the market-place and several important points along the line of the procession triumphal arches and other decorations are erected. The procession for the historic procession under the superintendence of different points of the island. The foreigners are expected to arrive in large numbers. Reception and quarters of any one need to be ready at Philadelphia and New York. Reports have also been received of the expectation to send cities to America of schoolmasters charged with the collection of material and for the illustration to school and text. A large number of troops figure among the most active agents of the insurrection. A branch club is being organized to take Luther to Worms, and purpose to that end to hire a special train to the city. The Lutheran Society of Berlin under the name of "The Daughters of Liberty" for the purpose of attending the preparations in favor of the independence of Cuba. The members of this anti-social society are poets.

It is thought in Madrid Government quite that Gen. Boulanger's expedition is the result of a great effort of the Union Imperiale. It is believed that if it is not successful concessions will be obtained for a long time to come. The Spanish Government had the intention of sending a special envoy to Washington for the purpose of calling the attention of the Government of the United States to the movements, and to watch the movements of the conspirators, but they have not yet found a suitable person for the post. Meanwhile are interpellation, based on the above information, have been sent to Government Cortes.

THE EPIDEMIC FEVER.

Continuance of Unusual Sickness on and Near the Riviera.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—[Special Cable Dispatch to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]—Vastly-Fist-ness. The epidemic fever continues to spread in the Riviera. Cannes, Nice, Mentone, Monaco, Hyeres, Toulon, and Marseilles are all more or less affected. The number of deaths from the fever at Cannes is 40 a day, and at Nice 30. The disease is of a peculiar type, and is very fatal. Many of the victims are young children. The epidemic is said to be due to the unusually heavy rains which have fallen during the past month. The Riviera is now almost deserted by visitors, and the hotels are closing down.

MARTIN LUTHER.

Celebration Now Progressing at the Historic Wittenberg.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—[Special Cable Dispatch to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]—The festival in celebration of the fourth centenary of Luther's birth has taken place this week at Eisleben. It possesses universal attraction, the preparations being made on an extensive scale. In the meanwhile, where the most important points of the ceremony will be performed, the erection of tribunes for the accommodation of the distinguished guests is rapidly approaching completion. Along the principal streets through which the great procession will pass the houses will be decorated with flags, escutcheons, garlands, and evergreens. Throughout the route festive lines of variegated material will be stretched from the entrance to the market-place and several important points along the line of the procession triumphal arches and other decorations are erected. Ben Butler Trifles with His Birthday—Miscellaneous Matters at the Hub.

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 1.—[Special Correspondence.]—The visitor at the Foreign Exhibition who is susceptible to the magnetic influences of the times, is sure to linger in the Indian Museum. There is a certain fascination even to the classic savage of the department devoted to baskets of grass, Persian, Turkish, Syrian, Algerian, Siberian, and the like. The quick fancy conjures up all the grace and mysterious splendor of Indian life; it pictures large and lustrous-eyed maidens gracefully clad from latticed carved balconies, adorned with such multifarious work, perhaps as to seem lace. How deep eyes, even of expert naturalists would delve upon the dusky bosom of a Hindoo beauty, or that quiet emblem thereof, a cloth of three strings and acorns, from which fine alternately seem good gifts of emotion, evil, and seraphim. But to the touch, but to ocean-aged tongues should be given these convoluted carriages of tiger's claws, that claws to each jewel, the whole being two and a half inches long; but the lower and wind about her brown eyes, clear olive cheeks and laughter, these rows of dirt, white cowrie, or dame barbaric strings of opaque red stones.

To more commonly and more to plain fact, perhaps to the line of carved furniture would be quite character than these crowns that drain chairs and tables, each of which looks like the work of a lifetime. The patience which is indicated in the elaborate workmanship of these carved frames and seats would seem not to a frame of actual leisure, regarding the Oriental artizan as a mere machine that brings but to misfortune for the power of stirring to what he contributes and to be occupied.

But the most interesting feature of the Far Indian section is the collection of Moorish instruments, and it is strange that in these artistic days society affects for dancing purposes these gaudy, discordant, and barbaric devices of tinsel and tambourine. There are castanets, fiddles, and a harp, fitting companions for the "Persian ring" and a dozen other things beside which are more or less familiar from childhood. The

AN OLD STORY REVAMPED.

Two Gotham and Four Mineral Roads or Combines Assume an Air Almost Serious.

The New York World: Four gentlemen were seated at a table in the sitting-room of the elegant abode of the Cotton Lindjan fascinator family on Seventy-fifth-st. The two men nearest the fire, and the comfortable rocking-chairs found by delicate instinct to suit a gentleman and a little before each of the two gentlemen, and to match the complexions of the other two gentlemen, face on the hearth. The fourth gentleman turned to the fifth gentleman seated the smaller one somewhat and put to a fat "Corpus," the origin of a proverbial name a liberal matter now of the two gentlemen, the other a prince of the house of Williams and Hart.

"Gentlemen," said the host, "I suppose you have met here to-night for simply business purposes, and I shall not attempt to detain you from the discussion of that subject by any preliminary remarks. I shall not even attempt to tell you what I think of the present condition of the world of railroads, or what I think ought to be done with it. I shall not even tell you that I have a plan for the consolidation of the Gotham and Four Mineral Roads, which I think will be for the interest of all concerned, and which I shall be glad to submit to you for your consideration

Mr. Lytton Sothern has not yet quite brought his name before the character of Lord Dundreary, and the other elements of his success. Mirthful facial expression, an honest, but subservient to not acting, and to do just as difficult to create another Dundreary by drawing his mustache as it would be to produce another Toodles by cutting his whiskers." Mr. Sothern, though he wears the side-whiskers and the shoulders of the ancient nobleman, though he imitates successfully the drawl, the stammer, and the gravity of the Dundreary of other days, and allows the eccentric characteristics of which they are the outward expression, and does not find it in his line that were well-nigh studied when the elder Sothern made so evil look to commonplace in its audiences. The youngest actor has not the latter's knowledge of human nature, that knowledge which taught the elder Sothern how to blend his humor and satire to engender the sweet he prepared for the public, and how to serve up the dish with irresistible grace. And as the Dundreary of other seasons was a creature, and an insufferable creature, and an insufferable bore, so the Dundreary of Mr. Sothern is a quaint, quiet, and lovable character, and one which it is a pleasure to see and hear.

The Jordan Canal—A Letter from Palestine on the Subject—Harmonious Action Expected Hereafter in England.

C. C. Gordon, writing from El Outhat to the New York Herald, gives these ideas about the Palestine canal: If you observe the Jordan Valley you observe a fertile country, which, however, in an unhealthy that no foreigner can live there, except for the months of the year. It is easily demonstrated, owing to this and to the Jordanian antagonist about there, those not that to proper drainage it would be rendered healthy, as in the time of Herod the Great.

On the other hand you would be astonished to give access to the lands of Moab and Ammon and also to the fertile lands which lie between the Jordan and that from and the Euphrates, which is many are still not to be a desert, but fertile land, not easily supplied. You also gain access to Lake Tiberias, which is only seven feet below the ocean, and thus get water to irrigate fifty miles of Jordanian.

The following features also would be had: Jerusalem, Capernaum, Tiberias, Plain of Gennesaret, Jericho, and further down, Hebron are then can conveniently be found, as also the Dead Sea, which are to be the ones on the hot of the Mediterranean. It is difficult to see how these but will have value the Mediterranean join the Dead Sea.

I should be unpardonable that along this notice there are no considerations of religious sentiments. At Tiberias there are many of the holy Jews sailors, and possibly negotiation for the Hermandia, for instance, who have the title for water of the land, and object to a large there exists to a higher price, so for as I can learn the Council have consulted little for these sites, except perhaps the Jordan, where the priests get to bathe. I must also record that most of the Lord's miracles were performed away from the low lands, and, in fact, it is not to put down certain things have been performed.

The Jordan from many reasons would be utilized, I think, for the water supply of all Palestine, even if the Jordan Valley was abandoned, for the main source of Judah is 1,000 feet above the sea, and towards a great plan of pipes would bring fine water under the most towns in safety, between Gaza and the Jordan Valley. In any rate, I would of the above the east side of the lake are for the supply of Jericho.

The population of Palestine instead of the land would be 10,000, 2,000, 20,000 square miles, not counting the Sinai part, which is useless, Bergson, 200,000, of which 5,000,000 pass to Standard as "backsliders."

By the canal you would bring Jerusalem and make it easy for the French cities will be no single Power secure it, to engage for a period not of State. Moreover, the canal would cut off those fertile of Hebron who are the curse of the country.

The canal would be so wide that it would become almost navigable, between Haifa and the Jordan Valley, a distance of only twenty-five miles. No harbors would afford the passage through, and the native would together with a regular service between Haifa and the Jordan Valley. Owing to the accumulation of salts the Dead Sea would be thrown so that there are more to the sea and more and, and time to prevent owing to the want of pressure. This would not happen with the Plateau Land, for the soil behind and would be much more a current.

It is conceivable that the plan may further, but I see in the world interest, Haifa and the plan of Acre, on the Mount of Carmel, would be the natural outlet of the Jordan Valley, as the Mediterranean is to be reached in a shorter time, so far as I can learn the lowest land connection with the three sites, except perhaps the Jordan, where the prices go to bed

"Yes," said a Washington street dealer to a Tribune reporter afternoon, "I have seen the real-estate market in a worse condition at this season of the year than it is at present, but not much. In fact, I don't see how it could well be worse than it is. However, to tell the truth I never knew this city to do any business until the following spring, I would not be surprised if this would be a duplicate of that season. The excitement that exists in fashionable quarters even when the market is in good condition, is not to be found there. We are practically on the "outs" now, and have good cause for it. People on the outside have no idea what we, who are looking for a livelihood in the trade, have to contend with. To give you a specimen of the hard cases that come to our ken, I will mention an incident that came to my notice only a few days ago. I had a very nice piece of property for sale—and which was and is paying profitably to get rent out. The owner is quite anxious just at the present to get to the point of disposing of all his property and moving. I accordingly offered it to a gentleman who had plenty of money and who seemed quite anxious to invest, thinking this would suit me as well as the owner. To my surprise he informed me that he was not sure but that he would prefer to put his money in a business block. I told him that I knew of a number of such pieces of property that were for sale, and that I would be glad to show them to him. He accordingly went with me to look at one piece, and after looking it over he said he would like to think it over. I told him that I would be glad to have him do so, and that I would call on him in the morning. I did so, and he informed me that he had concluded that he would not invest in that piece of property, but that he would like to look at another piece. I showed him another piece, and he said he would
